General Product Information

Vibrations destroy drivetrains, and the clutch is the main defense against vibrations in your driveline. In fact, ninety percent of a clutch's work cycle is spent dampening these vibrations from the engine to the drivetrain. Eaton engineers work with engine and vehicle manufacturers to design clutches that provide the best protection for high-value drivetrain components. Our proprietary disc facing compounds reduce facing wear, extend clutch life, and deliver the smoothest engagement and highest coefficient of friction in the industry. In addition, our torque and thermal management systems improve performance and reduce linkage noise and wear, while our pre-damper technology reduces idle rattle noise.
